

Andreas Dressler, Director, Global Locations & Expansion Services KPMG

Andreas Dressler is Director of KPMG's Global Location and Expansion Services (GLES) practice in Frankfurt, Germany. He moved to Europe in 2003 after spending 8 years with KPMG in Washington, DC, and in New York. Andreas helps companies to identify and exploit international opportunities, assists them to identify the best locations for their operations around the world, and supports the implementation of major expansion, consolidation or relocation projects.

Andreas also works with states, regions and cities to strengthen their international competitive position by developing economic development strategies and executing targeted investment attraction programs. He has assisted a number of cities, regions and states in North America, Europe and the Middle East with a broad range of economic development and investment attraction related efforts.
